FINAL CONFERENCE & PILOTING OUTCOMES

We are pleased to share highlights from the recent Smart Parenting final conference, held in Bastia on March 18, 2025. This important milestone brought together local stakeholders, professionals, future social workers, and parents to reflect on the progress of the project and explore new perspectives in parenting support.

The event featured a rich and engaging agenda with inspiring contributions from local authorities, child education experts, and project representatives. Participants shared valuable experiences and ideas, and the conference served as a vibrant space for connection, exchange, and collaboration.

The moment was widely appreciated by all attendees, who welcomed the opportunity to interact and network around shared concerns and practices in parenting and social work.

PILOTING PHASE & NEXT STEPS

The piloting phase was also completed, confirming the relevance and usefulness of the Smart Parenting platform and training materials. The platform is now fully operational and accessible to families and professionals across Europe.

Policy recommendations are being finalised and will be shared with stakeholders and decision-makers, ensuring long-term impact.

Stay tuned for more updates as we move forward with this important initiative. Together, we are building a brighter future for families!
